

OSHA Recordkeeping & 300 Log Incident Review

Accurate OSHA recordkeeping is essential for maintaining compliance and understanding the true safety performance of your facility. Misclassified injuries, incomplete documentation, or inaccurate entries can lead to compliance issues during an OSHA inspection.

Baldwin Safety Solutions offers an independent OSHA Recordkeeping and 300 Log Incident Review to ensure your injury and illness records meet regulatory requirements and accurately reflect workplace incidents.

Our review includes:

- Evaluation of your OSHA 300 Log, 300A Summary, and 301 Incident Reports
- Verification that injuries and illnesses are properly classified as recordable or non-recordable
- Review of Days Away, Restricted, or Transferred (DART) cases for accuracy
- Assessment of incident documentation and reporting procedures
- Identification of recordkeeping errors or inconsistencies
- Analysis of injury trends and recurring hazards
- Recommendations to improve incident reporting and prevention practices

A third-party review provides an objective evaluation of your records, helping ensure they are accurate, compliant, and defensible if reviewed during an OSHA inspection.

Why this matters:

OSHA recordkeeping violations are among the most common citations issued during inspections. Ensuring your logs are accurate before an inspection occurs can help protect your organization from unnecessary penalties.

Let Baldwin Safety Solutions help ensure your OSHA recordkeeping program is compliant, organized, and inspection ready. Give Baldwin Safety Solutions a call 682.381.8680 to schedule an appointment, we can help.
